5th International Conference on Ageing and Spirituality July 2013

The conference will appeal to both those with an academic interest, as well as those with more practical experience through involvement in the care industry or as informal carers. It will be of interest to those coming from a faith based approach and those approaching spirituality from a secular one.

The programme includes a mixture of Master Classes, workshops, academic papers and presentations on projects:

Keynote Speakers:

Professor Elizabeth Mackinlay (Charles Sturt University);
Professor Susan McFadden (University of Wisconsin Oshkosh);
Professor John Swinton (University of Aberdeen);
Rabbi Wittenberg (New North London Synagogue);
John Killick (freelance writer) and Claire Craig (Occupational Therapist);
Professor Mary Marshall

Papers will cover a wide range of issues, including:

Finding meaning in later life; Dementia; Spiritual care planning; Reducing social isolation;
Geotranscendence; The role of faith communities; Secular approaches; and findings from specific projects working with older people.

PREVIOUS EVENTS

Civic Café, held on 8th April 2013

Faith in Older People were pleased to collaborate with the Edinburgh Interfaith Association to organise three civic cafe events which provided an opportunity to discuss ageing and spiritual support for older people. We encompassed ageing, health and death and dying and the discussions around small tables were animated and fruitful. It is important for Faith in Older People to bring together people from different faiths to discuss these important issues. Those attending also had the opportunity to attend the monthly community meal arranged by EIFA which meant we could continue the discussion and networking.

Let's Talk Conference, held on 16th May 2013

During the awareness week for GoodLifeGoodDeathGoodGrief, Faith in Older People held a conference in collaboration with the Church of Scotland and ACTS to discuss end of life matters. Representatives from a range of congregations attended and discussed ageing and the response of the churches; end of life; dementia; palliative care and our personal hopes and fears.

Our excellent speakers (Dr Harriet Mowat, Mark Hazelwood (GLGDGG), Jenny Henderson (Alzheimer's Scotland) and Dr Ewan Kelly (NHS Educational Spiritual Care Unit)) provided much food for thought and action and stimulated searching questions. It was clear from the level of debate that these topics are of great interest and it is important for Faith in Older People to provide more opportunities for open discussion.

Please let us have your ideas and email us on info@fiop.org.uk if you would like Faith in Older People to provide training or a local event. We are happy to tailor training to meet your specific needs.

THE ROLE OF THE CHURCHES IN SUPPORTING OLDER PEOPLE

Faith in Older People are now collating responses to the survey on work undertaken for older people by faith communities in Scotland.

To ensure that as many responses as possible feed into this survey, the deadline has been extended until Friday 28th June 2013. Please download it from our website: click here to view questionnaire

BOOK REVIEW

Dementia. Support for family and friends. Dave Pulsford and Rachel Thompson

Published by Jessica Kingsley Publishers.

This is a really sensible book and will be very helpful to anyone with a relative or friend who has dementia. It has a well-informed, gentle tone. It avoids being patronising whilst easy to read and understand. It is laced with quotes from carers and people with dementia and is very careful about the terms used so no offence is caused. Thus what is generally called 'challenging behaviour' is called 'behaviour others find difficult'.

Of course any book like this will leave things out. I would have liked more of a warning about people with dementia moving house since they often struggle to remember their way around a new place. It talks about the gap years after a diagnosis but here in Scotland everyone who receives a diagnosis has now to have post-diagnostic support. There is too little about a sore mouth creating eating difficulties which is common in my experience.

Two criticisms. One is that there is, I think, a rather unhelpful linking of care homes and hotels. They should be very different since one is a permanent home for someone with dementia. The second is that the book fails to say enough about the positive aspects such as people with dementia often being more open about their feelings. These are minor quibbles about an excellent book.
